

August 20, 2020

Dear Governor Cuomo, Majority Leader Andrea Stewart-Cousins and Speaker Heastie,

The restaurant industry needs immediate relief, and needs to address long-standing racial inequities in our industry at the same time. We, the undersigned restaurant owners and hospitality professionals, agree that our industry is in desperate need of economic support: to recover, to reopen, and to reimagine a future in which our team members are all paid a full minimum wage plus tips. This is how we survive this crisis and thrive.

To survive this crisis and thrive, we recommend a relief package that ensures a strong restaurant industry recovery: tip-sharing; a modest recovery surcharge for restaurants that follow a gold-standard of virus-related precautions; payroll tax relief; and the elimination of the subminimum wage.

In April 2018, Congress passed a bill allowing restaurant employers nationwide who pay the full minimum wage to share tips with kitchen staff. This has helped owners in other states manage labor costs and create greater pay equity in regards to race, gender, and position in their restaurants. Many New York restaurant employers are prepared to move to a full minimum wage if tip sharing becomes permissible—along with a recovery surcharge, and modest tax relief only applicable to increased wages.

Modest tax relief coupled with a wage increase for tipped workers would pay for itself. We have done fiscal analysis that shows that income taxes coming into the state from a $5 wage increase for tipped workers would bring in far more in revenue than would be lost through moderate payroll tax relief for struggling restaurant owners. And of course, it would allow restaurant workers to survive in a time when a subminimum wage is not livable, as tips are down 75-90%.

It has become clearer than ever that hospitality professionals' economic futures are deeply insecure, with many facing hunger, housing destabilization, and additional debt. Being forced to rely solely on tips, creates a system that encourages rampant sexual harassment of women, reinforces a wide delta of inequity of race, mass disenfranchisement of immigrants, people of color and working poor. With tips vastly down in this climate already, it's clear that having to rely on tips alone could never be sustainable.

New York must take this opportunity to ensure a sustainable and just future for all. In this case, that means government working hand-in-hand with hospitality professionals—both front line team members and owner/operators—to ensure that we have a living wage, and that the hard-hit restaurants New Yorkers love have the tools needed to lead our industry and thrive.

Sincerely,

NEW YORK RESTAURANT OWNERS
